34 of 1948,

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Employees' State Insurance Act, 1948, provides, inter alia, for certain benefits to employees in case of sickness, maternity and employment injury and for certain other matters in relation thereto. At present the Act covers employees whose wages do not exceed Rs. 500 per month. This limit is considered very low in the context of the current wage levels in various industries. The situation has become worse, as fresh increases in wages are being made on account of inflation. As a result, there are instances where most of the labour working in a factory falls outside the scope of the Act and loses the valuable benefits conferred by it. There have, therefore, been persistent requests for enhancement of the wage limit for coverage under the Act. The last increase in the wage limit was made when the Act was amended last in 1963. It is, therefore, proposed to raise the wage limit for coverage of employees from Rs. 500 to Rs. 1 000 per month so as to secure the benefits conferred by the Act to a larger section of the employees.

2. The working of the Act has revealed that the penal provisions in the Act are not effective in checking defaults in the payment of contributions. It is, therefore, proposed to impose enhanced and more deterrent penalties for defaults in the payment of contributions.

3. Opportunity is also being taken to amend the Act for the purposes mentioned below:

(a) The limit for creation of posts by the Employees' State Insurance Corporation without the sanction of the Central Government is being raised from Rs. 500 to Rs. 1,200.

(b) It is proposed to provide that the buyer or transferee of an establishment in respect of which dues payable under the Act are pending shall also be liable to pay those dues.

(c) The Table of contributions and benefits in the First Schedule to the Act is being revised, consequent on the raising of the wage limit from Rs. 500 to Rs. 1,000.

4. It is also proposed to clarify that any contributions deducted from the employees' wages by the employer under the Act shall be deemed to be entrusted to the employer within the meaning of section 405 of the Indian Penal Code

5. The Bill seeks to achieve the aforesaid objects.

NEW DELHI;

K. V. RAGHUNATHA REDDY.

The 7th March, 1975.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

The Employees' State Insurance Act, 1948, applies to a number of Central Government undertakings.

2. Clause 2 of the Bill seeks to increase the wage limit for coverage of employees from Rs. 500 to Rs. 1,000 per month. This involves payment of contributions by employers (including Central Government) also in respect of employees who draw a monthly wage between Rs. 500 to Rs. 1,000.

3. Clause 8 seeks to substitute the existing Table in paragraph 3 of the First Schedule by a new Table which provides for rationalisation of the rates of contributions payable by employers and employees. These proposals in so far as they relate to the Central Government undertakings will involve increased expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of India.

4. The additional liability on account of inclusion of employees who draw monthly wages between Rs. 500 and Rs. 1,000 will, however, be off-set to the extent that with the rise in wage level, by and large, the original coverage of the Act will more or less be preserved. Further the employers will get relief from their liability in respect of employees under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 and the Maternity Benefit Act, 1961. Moreover, many of the Central Government undertakings have been exempted from the operation of the Act under section 90 thereof since they provide benefits which are superior or substantially similar to those provided under the Act. However, as the Act is being extended to new areas from time to time and the number of undertakings and employees covered go on changing, it is not possible to give an estimate of the total additional recurring expenditure involved from the Consolidated Fund of India. However, the additional recurring liability of employer on account of rationalisation of the rates of contributions and additional coverage has been estimated at Rs. 17.53 and Rs. 16.44 per annum per existing employee respectively.

5. There will be no non-recurring expenditure.

B. N. BANERJEE,
Secretary-General.
